The Raffles ladies captured two in their set with Murrys although the 70-pin handicap made it a close win in the last game.

The score:

There is some dispute about the comparative excellence of the teams entered in the Forty-Niner League, and perhaps it will be ironed out tonight.

The Eagles and the American Legion are tied for first place, Burgers, Sid's Honeys and Murrys are tied for second, and the Max Baers are trailing.

The schedule for tonight sends Burgers against the Legion, Baers against Sid's Honeys, and Murrys against the Eagles. Let 'er go, boys, and lookout for the foul line!

MRS. LUCILLE CLIFTON RESIGNS POST IN FOREST OFFICE

Mrs. Lucille Clifton will complete her work in the offices of Eldorado National Forest on Saturday and will be succeeded by Miss Marie Phelan, lately of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Clifton expressed a wish to be relieved of duty several months ago and has continued in her employment until such time as a qualified applicant could be found to carry on her work.

This proved more of a problem than might at first appear.

Weeks stretched into months while efforts to obtain a federal civil service rated successor were under way and within the past few weeks Miss Phelan, who had been employed in the national capital, applied for transfer to Placerville to fill the pending vacancy.

Miss Phelan and her mother arrived this week.

COUGARS PLAY CALAVERAS TONIGHT

Second League Game Of Season Under Lights On San Andreas Field

El Dorado High School's Cougars play their second league game of the season and their fourth of the fall campaign at San Andreas tonight against the Jumping Frogs of Calaveras Union High School.

With a league victory over Bret Harte high school and two non-league defeats in their record, the Cougars tonight play the first game in the league schedule to be played under lights.

The kickoff will be at 7:30 o'clock and the Cougars were to leave by bus for San Andreas at four o'clock.

In preparation for the San Andreas game, the Cougars went to Auburn two weeks ago to play a night game with the Auburn high school for some experience under the lights, and they got it.

Since that game, Coach L. A. Brown has been pointing out some of the points on which the Cougars must be especially watchful in the league initiation in night play.

The student body held a downtown rally for the game Thursday night and was to hold a pep assembly at the school at noon.

Principal B. E. Larson said that it had been suggested that the school's buses might be used to transport rooters to and from the game. In the present situation, he said, this is impossible since the buses could not return to Placerville after completing their afternoon run. In time to get to San Andreas in time for the game.

However, a large delegation in private cars is expected to follow the Cougars to San Andreas.

In connection with the Roll Call plans, and also in connection with the chapter's continuing co-operation in the life saving and swimming instruction program carried out each summer at the Placerville swimming pool, Thomas A. Gill, of the Pacific headquarters, will be present at tonight's meeting.

EVACUATION OF MOSCOW IS REPORTED

Nazi Advance Continues; Far East Tension Eased By Jap Cabinet Trend

BY UNITED PRESS

The Moscow radio reported today that the German offensive was still pounding into Red army defense lines at a slower pace and at cost of huge casualties, but radio Vichy said that the axis forces were only about 37 miles from the Soviet capital.

Direct press communication with Moscow has been interrupted for 24 hours.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
U. P. Foreign News Editor

Emperor Hirohito called on an army man today to form Japan's crisis cabinet as Nazi legions pounded against home guard battalions mustered to reinforce the tiring defenders of Moscow.

The Germans were slashing without pause against the Soviet capital. North and south of Moscow, the Nazi flanking columns drove forward and it was believed that access to the city was possible only from the east. One Russian report said the Nazi advance had been slowed but there was no claim that the Germans had been halted.

Japan's cabinet crisis reflected the intensity of the combat for Moscow.

Hirohito picked War Minister Hideki Tojo, war minister under Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, to attempt to form a government to succeed Konoye. It was expected that Tojo would succeed although he asked for a brief interval in which to consult political figures.

The exact complexion of Tojo's proposed government was not known but he is regarded as a "conservative nationalist." Hirohito's choice was believed to indicate that Japan is once more postponing, if possible, the fateful showdown day when she must cast her lot either with the tri-partite partners or with Britain and the United States.

While Tojo represents the army and the army is the most extreme fire-eating faction in Japan, Tojo is considered among the more moderate leaders.

In Shanghai, London and Washington Tojo's selection came as at least a partial relief.

Regarding Moscow there was a dearth of specific information.

The German high command cast no light on the situation, saying only that operations are proceeding according to plan with the Luftwaffe making heavy attacks on Leningrad, Moscow and ships evacuating Soviet troops from Odessa.

School Board To Meet Saturday

Session Will Be Of Special Importance On Attendance Matters

A meeting of the county board of education will convene on Saturday morning at ten o'clock at the school administration offices at the courthouse.

According to County Superintendent K. W. McCoy, the business of the meeting will be of special importance to the districts in which questions of attendance are in dispute.

The law provides, he said, that in instances where a pupil living in one district is attending school in another and the two districts are unable to agree upon the financial aspects of the situation such disputes must be settled before the expiration of the first two months of school or no attendance money can be allowed in the district in which the pupil is attending.

SHAKESPEARE LUNCHEON PLANS READY; RESERVATIONS ASKED

Members Are Requested To Reserve Places By Telephone With Mrs. E. K. Fowler Or Mrs. Percy McNie For Tuesday Event

Preparations for the annual luncheon of the Placerville Shakespeare Club, to be held Tuesday at one o'clock at the clubhouse, are complete, the committee in charge announced Friday.

Officers of the club called attention to the custom which has been followed for several years past that members who plan to attend should make reservations for luncheon places for themselves and their guests.

Reservations are being received by Mrs. E. K. Fowler in Placerville and Mrs. Percy McNie, at Camino. The club will have as its guest speaker for the day Carol Hall, recently appointed curator of the pioneer museum at Sutter's fort.

In addition, Mrs. J. P. Morhead, of Marysville, northern district president of the state federation of women's clubs, and Mrs. Don Bass, of Roseville, Tri-County Federation president, will be in attendance. A program of special music is being prepared.

"FOLDING MONEY" RETURNS AND NEW YORK IS RIDING FLOOD TIDE OF NATIONAL DEFENSE BOOM

NEW YORK (UP)—Folding money is back and New York is riding the flood tide of the boom.

While the nation spends billions for defense, important money is changing hands in the big town—for luxuries and for fun.

The little and the middle men are having the fun. The shows $6.60 top for a first night, and the night clubs are booming. The imported wines and liquors are fading as rapidly as the prices on them are rising.

But the gold is in the luxury market.

A customer cupped the article in question in the palm of his hand and asked "How much?"

"One million dollars," Harry Winston said.

"We'll talk about it some more," the customer said. "Don't sell it till you hear from me."

That was in an office high above Fifth Avenue. Within the radius of a five-minute walk a woman ran her fingers through a platinum fox pelt and ordered a fur coat for $10,000; Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach thumbed through inquiries for a collection of naval documents worth hundreds of thousands of dollars; a movie director bought the diamond spray pin of Marie Antoinette.

Clerks at Gimbel's rushed the job of cataloguing a $5,000,000 collection of old masters and rare porcelains.

"There are 30,000 new collectors," Dr. Armand Hammer said examining the rare pieces and the swiftly diminishing items of the fabulous Hearst collection which he is selling.

New York is beginning to stir with the tide of the boom that has gained more momentum elsewhere.

Take the case of Harry Winston. That pigeon-sized chunk of crystallized carbon is the Jonkheer diamond. Winston bought it, had it cut and shaped into one of the great stones of world history, priced it at $1,000,000. That's big money anywhere, anytime. But recently people have been asking about it, looking at it, wondering.

"It will be sold," Winston predicted.

The Jonkheer diamond isn't all that Winston has been asked to show lately. Someone wanted a price on the Nassak diamond, a brilliant blue-lighted stone of 44 carats and intense historical value. Winston told him $250,000 and it may be a deal soon.

He has a pink diamond at $125,000 and so encouraging has his business been recently that he is rushing the cutting of stones from the President Vargas, one of the largest diamonds ever found. It is being shaped into one 50 carat stone and 23 diamonds of 10, 20 and 30 carats each.

Dr. Hammar also deals in jewels—historical pieces. Gregory Ratoff, a film producer, bought a pair of emerald ear rings from the Russian crown jewel collection.

"Definitely an increase in this type of custom," Dr. Hammar said. "It may be for investment or against inflation or just because there is more money around. Anyway the market for important jewelry is good."

Dr. Hammar is astounded at the way the expensive pieces of the William Randolph Hearst collection have been going. He sold also the $5,000,000 Clarence Mackay collection and the brisk trade led him to close a deal for the famous collection of Warner S. McCall of St. Louis.

Dr. Rosenbach has one of the foremost collections of manuscripts, early printings, historical pieces and illustrations in the world—outside of a museum. And largely, said one of his associates, "There has been great interest in many of our items apparently by men who want to give them to colleges or museums or add to their own collections."

That means, the associate suggested, that big money is being made again. It takes big money to ask about items like the only certified manuscript copy of the bill of rights outside of the library of Congress. That could be bought for $240,000. Or Oudry's drawings for La Fontaine's Fables. Dr. Rosenbach once turned down $400,000 for the collection.

Right now Dr. Rosenbach is exhibiting a collection of naval documents all the way from the secret manuscript orders of John Paul Jones to the log book of the Monitor. One letter of the collection, the only Button Gwinnet (signer of the Declaration of Independence) signature in existence is valued at $51,000. And the manuscript, dated

U.S. DESTROYER IS DAMAGED IN ATTACK

U. S. S. Kearney, Hit By Torpedo, Making Port; No Casualties Reported

HYDE PARK, (UP)—President Roosevelt said today that the U. S. S. Kearney clearly was within the American defensive zone when torpedoed this morning.

The President said that the navy is operating under its regular orders as far as retaliation against the assailant is concerned.

No further comment on this attack on an American destroyer may be expected from him, Mr. Roosevelt said, until the navy has established all the facts in the case.

Senators Say: WASHINGTON, (UP)—Senator Claude Pepper, D. Fla., asserted today that the attack on the U. S. S. Destroyer Kearney should be avenged by the navy with a policy of "two sinkings for each assault."

Pepper described the incident as one more in a "chain of piratical assaults" upon American vessels which should spur the United States to "redouble our purpose to clear the oceans of this kind of interference."

Sen. Gerald P. Nye, R., N. D., said such incidents "are to be expected" in view of the administration's foreign policy.

"If the Kearney was up to what we know the Greer was up to, then the whole matter will be different from the case the interventionists will undoubtedly try to make out," Nye said.

No Casualties WASHINGTON, (UP)—The U. S. S. Kearney, one of the United States Navy's newest destroyers, was damaged by a torpedo today in the first successful attack on an American naval ship in the Atlantic since the European war started.

The attack, according to the navy department's brief announcement, occurred 350 miles south and west of American-defended Iceland. The preliminary navy dispatches indicated that there were no casualties among the crew.

At the time of the attack the Kearney was on patrol duty, carrying out its assignment in the North Atlantic patrol which is under President Roosevelt's orders to shoot (Continued on Page Three)

19 To Be Called In Draft Quota

County Board Is Asked To Supply 18th Group November 3 To 18th

The quota for the eighteenth draft call in El Dorado County, under the Selective Service Act of 1940, is nineteen men.

The El Dorado County quota will report at Sacramento on a day yet to be set, sometime between November 3 and November 18.

This is according to word received by the Selective Service Board from the state selective service headquarters.

Members of the Selective Service Board met Friday morning in the first of a series of meetings during which the names of the nineteen men who will supply the November quota will be listed on the basis of their selective service classification.

1386, of "Livre de La Chasse," a sporting book, price, $300,000.

Interest in these—and there has been plenty—is a heartening thing for Dr. Rosenbach.

The swank fur salons are wistfully harkening back to the days when imported furs like Russian broadtail were plentiful. There are buyers today but few pelts. Any number of mink coats ($3,000 to $6,000) are being sold, though, and lots of ermine, sable and white and silver fox.

The best indication of the way Broadway has taken it is the "total gross" listing in Variety, based on receipts of 14 theatres:

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Use The Republican Classified Ads — They Pay!

Peggy O'Toole, Irish-American girl, after breaking her engagement to George ("Jimmy") Meredith, is badly injured in an accident. The doctors say she may never walk again. Jimmy begs her to renew their engagement, but she thinks his proposal is prompted by pity, so refuses him. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Greer, take her to Paris to see a specialist. One day, while sitting in the park in her wheelchair, she strikes up an acquaintance with a young Italian officer, Lieutenant Paul Rimini. The following evening he brings her a scarf she lost, asks her to let him take her to Montmartre and, over the protests of her companion, Miss Tucker, sweeps her up in his arms and carries her away. She has a marvelous time but when Paul brings her back to her hotel, she finds that her grandfather, badly worried, has had the police searching for her.

CHAPTER XXIV

BUT, Peggy darling, I don't understand at all," Mrs. Greer said reproachfully. It was the morning following Peggy's escapade with Lieutenant Paul Rimini. "I can scarcely believe that my granddaughter would let herself be a common pick-up—but Miss Tucker says that, the other day in the park—"

"Oh hang Tucky!" Peggy said, almost crossly. "What difference does it make how we met, Granny? He's so nice. I know you'll like him when you meet him."

"But who is he?" "I've told you—an officer in the Italian air corps, on leave."

"I know—but what is his background? Where does he come from? Who are his family? You say nothing about him!" Peggy sighed. "I know that he's a gentleman. That's plain—regardless of his background, whatever it may be."

Mrs. Greer shook her head skeptically. "Officer on leave," she murmured. "In Paris for a good time, say reckless."

Just then a trim maid entered the room. "Lieutenant Rimini to see Mademoiselle," she announced.

"Mademoiselle is not in, Marie," Mrs. Greer said at once.

Peggy made a gesture of protest, but her grandmother was firm.

"He may be nice, and all that you say—but before I shall allow him to call, he must be introduced in the proper way! Remember that Italian girls are bound by rules of strict decorum to which even a gay young blade like this Lieutenant Rimini must bow. He must not be permitted to think that just because you come from America he can utterly disregard the conventions!"

Peggy protested further but to no avail.

is gone. He certainly ought to realize that he isn't welcome!" "This is ridiculous," Peggy thought resentfully. "I'm a grown woman, not a child! Simply because I'm helpless doesn't mean that I'm unable to manage my own life!" However she said nothing.

When they returned later, Paul was nowhere in sight. Convinced on that score, Miss Tucker settled herself firmly on a bench opened her book, and began to read aloud. Peggy listened with bored attention.

"SIGNORINA!" It was barely a whisper. Peggy started, and looked around. Paul was hidden in the shrubbery directly at her side. She looked quickly at Miss Tucker, who was reading on undisturbed, then bent her head close to the bushes.

"What's happened?" Paul whispered. "I called this morning and was told you were not at home. Then, this afternoon—"

Miss Tucker looked up suddenly. "Did you say something dear?" Peggy swallowed. "No, I didn't say anything."

"Oh—I thought you did—" Miss Tucker turned back to her book. Peggy waited a minute, then quietly opened her purse and took out a pencil and small piece of paper.

She wrote, "Grandmother is old-fashioned. Think she should know something about you—that you should be properly introduced—before she allows you to call."

She glanced at Miss Tucker, then cautiously slipped the note into the bushes to Paul. She saw him read it, then form the words "Thank you," with his lips. A moment later, he was gone.

HOW well Paul could take a hint became apparent that very evening.

Mr. Greer had been down to the lobby alone. When he returned to his suite, to rejoin his wife and Peggy, he was beaming.

"Guess who I ran into down in the lobby!" he exclaimed. "Jim Baker! His daughter's married to a Frenchman and he's visiting her. And whom do you think he introduced me to? The Comtesse de Bryce and her nephew, the Marchese della Chiesa!"

"Yes?" Mrs. Greer said with interest. "I have met the Comtesse casually. She is very charming."

"But what do you think of this?" Mr. Greer continued. "The Marchese happens to be Peggy's friend—the lieutenant!"

He really had his wife's attention now—as well as Peggy's. Both stared at him in astonishment.

"Henry! You mean—Peggy's friend is a nobleman?"

"Not only that—Jim told me later that he's rated as almost a millionaire. The Marchese hinted that he'd like to come to call some time—and meet you—so I invited him to come at any time."

Mrs. Greer looked at Peggy. "You might have told us, my dear," she rebuked mildly.

"Oh she's a spy!" Mr. Greer chuckled. "She isn't telling anything she knows!"

"But I—I didn't know it myself!" Peggy stammered.

At that moment the maid appeared.

"Lieutenant Paul Rimini calling Mademoiselle," she looked doubtfully at her mistress.

"Oh show the lieutenant in—by all means, Marie!" Mrs. Greer exclaimed, looking very flustered.

The reading room at the church building is open Tuesday and Friday from 2 o'clock until 4 o'clock

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, Massachusetts, a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, October 19, on the subject "Doctrine of Atonement." The Golden Text will be: "There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus: who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time." (I Timothy 2: 5, 6).

Bible selections will include the following passages from Micah 6: 6, 8. "Wherewith shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? . . . He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "We must not seek the immutable and immortal through the finite, mutable, and moral, and so depend upon belief instead of demonstration, for this is fatal to a knowledge of Science. The understanding of Truth gives full faith in Truth, and spiritual understanding is better than all burnt offerings." (p. 286).

SMITH FLAT TEACHER IS CARSON CITY BRIDE OF ELMER PORINI

Elmer Porini, son of Mrs. Disolina Porini, of Placerville, and Miss Lillian Chames, a teacher in the Smith Flat school, were married September 27 at Carson City and are making their home at Smith Flat.

Porini, formerly master of Hantington Grange at Smith Flat and a former secretary of El Dorado-Amador Pomona Grange, was recently discharged from the Army as a sergeant, under the Selective Service Extension Act of 1941.

Mr. Porini is a member of the National Guard and was among those from El Dorado County who entered Army training at Camp San Luis Obispo when the militia unit was called into active service.

His bride is a graduate of San Jose State College and has been a teacher at Smith Flat for the past two and one-half years. We hasten to join other friends of the couple in offering every good wish.

Friends From Distant Points At Funeral

E. Van Dyke, of Sacramento; and Mrs. Fred Spriggs, of Fred's Place.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN BUSINESS

BY JOHN CRADDOCK

NON-CRUSHING CURES — A survey of leading credit retailers indicates the restrictions on installment terms that went into effect Sept. 1 have had almost no effect. In fact, in discouraging demand for household goods. About the only noticeable change is that more people are buying for cash. Although there was a big dip in sales right after the regulations took effect, this was attributed mainly to the confusion over what the restriction meant. Indications are the Federal reserve board may "tighten the screws" in order to produce the desired effect of reducing demand for articles using materials needed for defense goods. Meanwhile, as expected, the customers "beat the luxury tax" rush the last two days of September sent department store sales soaring again. For the week ending October 4 they were 34 per cent ahead of the previous year.

WASHINGTON — Bill Knudsen made the biggest news here, with figures on proportion of total U. S. manufacturing facilities that "might eventually" be needed for defense work alone. It might reach 65 per cent, he said, and for the year beginning next June would be around 53 per cent. Indications of how far the pendulum has yet to swing, from peacetime to armaments production, are seen in the fact that, as of now, the country is devoting only 15 per cent of its productive facilities to defense work. Fitting into this picture, also was his request to machine tool makers to institute a seven-day work week and increase night-time operations. Farm equipment industry got relief in two ways: OPA allowed makers to advance prices on tractors—by from 6 1/2 to 10 per cent; and SPAB gave them assurance of materials for manufacture.

BUSINESS AS TEACHER — A new keynote on teamwork between education and business has been struck by James M. Wood, president of Stephens College at Columbia, Mo. Discussing the forum to be held there in November on "the American woman and her responsibilities" he said "our business and professional leaders must assume a share of the responsibility for providing education in health and financial matters. Every business has these responsibilities, he said, but cited insurance companies as being in position to do an especially outstanding job in establishing finanial security for homes. However, he said, they have not "followed through" in the matter of educational problem here, of making sure that the beneficiaries get the utmost possible value." Dr. Wood said, "is one that can be handled best not by any school course, but is a natural one for the agent in the community, who is in direct touch with the holder and the beneficiary."

PLANES IN PEACE — The airplane is destined to become an even more powerful force for shaping the peace of the future than it is in winning the present war, according to C. V. Whitney, board chairman of Pan American Airways. He predicts that the nations of the world will continue to use their enlarged aircraft production lines and vast material supplies for building airplanes for peaceful missions after the war. In addition, Whitney says, the end of the defense program will turn loose possibly 100,000 fully-trained pilots and co-pilots and several hundred thousand skilled mechanics. The domestic airline industry now employs only about 2,000 pilots. The aviation pioneer said he "wouldn't be surprised if, within a year, there will be planes that will take 50 people non-stop from New York to London in seven hours."

THINGS TO WATCH FOR — A new "almost metal-less" airplane, by Langley Aviation, made of molded plastic and molded mahogany plywood to escape metal priorities; it has carried four passengers at 142 miles an hour in tests. . . . Telephones which flash a neon light instead of ringing a bell—since different colored lights may be used, it may appeal especially to multi-phone offices where variety jingles contribute to nerve jangles. . . . Basil Rathbone, sleuth and villain of the films, in a contrasty role as kindly narrator in Columbia's recording of "Peter and the Wolf," Prokofiev's orchestral fairy tale. . . . hamburgers in canned form are being tested by Hormel, with the name, "Wimpys" . . . after the burger-mooching comic strip character. . . . A rubber-tube-and-valve device which makes it possible for an autoist to transfer the air from his spare tire to a wheel tire gone soft. . . . New versions in motorcycles, to appeal to defense economy-minded folk — one model with turret-type seat and extra-long, springy frame promises 100 miles per gallon of gas.

BITS O' BUSINESS — Restaurant sales are booming, have been setting new volume records every month for 28 months—but food and labor cost increases have squeezed the already-thin profit margin almost to the vanishing point. So don't be surprised if you find more menus listing extra charges for beverages, desserts, soups; possibly even a slight charge for bread and butter.

U. S. Destroyer Is Torpedoed

Axis submarines, warplanes or surface raiders on sight in American defensive waters. The sea lanes to Iceland are considered American defensive waters.

The navy did not identify the attacker. Despite damage, the navy declared, the Kearny was able to proceed under her own power.

Lieut. Comdr. A. L. Danis, skipper of the torpedoed destroyer, is a survivor of the crash of the Navy dirigible Macon in the Pacific on Feb. 12, 1935.

Danis, a native of this city, is 42. He was graduated from the naval academy at Annapolis, Md., in 1918, and served aboard another dirigible, the Akron. He was not aboard her when she crashed off the New Jersey coast.

He has commanded the Kearny since it was placed in service in 1940.

A destroyer the size of the Kearny normally carries a crew of about 200 men. The Kearny is a two-stacker, low swung and speedy. In addition to its five 5-inch guns, it carries 10 smaller guns, and an equal number of 21-inch torpedo tubes.

Moscow Being Evacuated

Six of these ships totaling 30,000 tons were sunk, it was claimed, and eight of them damaged.

London admitted that the Germans appear to be going forward slowly on Moscow. The Soviet metropolis was virtually an armed camp. Diplomats and many government departments had evacuated east to a new capital.

There was no direct word from Moscow. Moscow radio stations were heard broadcasting the usual communiques and dispatches from the big newspapers Izvestia and Pravda but there had been no direct communication from the United Press staff correspondents in the Soviet capital for 24 hours.

The big Nazi offensive was in its 16th day.

THE Book Mark

By JANE VOILES

"An optimist in 1941," says Jay Allen, the foreign correspondent, "is a man who still believes that the future is uncertain." Jay Allen whose book "My Trouble With Hitler," will be one of the important books of the fall is on what he elegantly calls "the mashed potato circuit" speaking at lunch clubs—where mashed potatoes never fail to appear. Allen took a chance going into occupied France—he spent 5 months in jail—eventually the United States government got him out—he was traded for a German correspondent.

When Allen decided upon Vichy last year, his friends told him he would never make the headlines there. Vincent Sheean was off for London, Hemingway for China, but Allen had three reasons for going to Vichy. First, he had covered the war in Spain living in hotels that were shelled every day, he was tired of shells and wanted to get away from them, second, he was tired of sitting in beleaguered capitals, hearing the same question continually "when is America coming in," and third, he wanted to go where he would not acquire a case.

So he took the clipper at 9 a. m. that was supposed to land him in Lisbon the following afternoon at 2 p. m.; however, so many acts of nature and acts of God interfered that it took him something like three days longer than it took Columbus to cross the Atlantic. When he finally arrived at Lisbon, he found that he couldn't go to Vichy by way of Spain because he was on Franco's black list. He was taken on a tug to Gibraltar and there looking over to the purple hills of Spain, he had an opportunity to do a little meditating on how the Germans and Italians moved into Spain in 1936 when the present war really began, how the bell tolled in Spain for more than a million and a half; how it tolled in China for more than twice that number yet we couldn't hear it for listening to the purring of the appeasers.

Allen got to Vichy. He managed to get an interview with the 85-year-old Petain. Today Petain is a gentle, pathetic old man but not senile. It has been said of him that "he is as stupid as a fox."

Petaim's character offers an interesting study in contrasts. It was he who at Verdun said: "They shall not pass!" It was he who signed the most humiliating peace in history.

Americans would not recognize the Paris of today. Allen went to Paris without papers which helped to pave the way for his internment.

Swastika banners float over the Opera House, in the Champs Elysee German soldiers goose-step up to salute the grave of the unknown soldier; white placards are posted everywhere. They tell who is being executed that day. Paris is a city of humiliation. The French pay millions of francs to the Germans who in turn are buying up everything. The group in power that valued comfort and money above freedom, sacrificed freedom but comfort and money fled with it.

Legally Allen had no right to be in Paris. After nine days he was interned and asked bluntly why he should not be court-martialed as a spy? Fortunately, he knew the right answer. He was treated decently enough in prison but he could not say the same for his fellow prisoners. Punishment was meted out at night. He could hear the sound of the German boot in the corridor, the key turning in the rusty locks, then the sound of fists on defenseless flesh. The three weeks he spent in solitary confinement at Dijon were the worst. At that place he was awakened every morning by the peculiar sounds which meant executions.

Like the other foreign correspondents who have talked recently, Van Paassen and H. M. Knickerbocker—Jay Allen believes that the Germans are working on us by remote control as they worked on the people of Europe. "The real fifth columnists," he says, "are the indifferent people." "He who is not against Hitler is for him."

That, in substance is what Mr. Allen is saying in his lectures on the coast. Some will look upon him as a war monger, others as the voice of the prophet. The real tragedy is the fact that America is divided.

Do you want a laugh in the intervals of serious thinking? Then we recommend the following:

Embattled Male in the Garden, or Why Women are Queer in the Country," by Dwight Farnham. A male gardener relates his experience about what happens when there is a woman in the garden.

Shocking Bad Hat. By Dorothy Hewlett. Light entertainment, and quaint background. Miss Hewlett knows how to write.

The Nun and the Bandit. By E. L. Grant Watson. This is being badly hooded as the novel of the season. No hint about plot. It is all to be a surprise for the eager reader!

Basque Back in Style

TIGHT VELVET BASQUE and full skirt of contrasting material is one of the more popular styles this year for both street and formal wear. Mitzie Gould of the CBS "The O'Neills" shows wears a youthful model, reminiscent of peasant costumes, in red velvet and black sheer wool with black embroidery trim. (Lanz of Salzburg.)

CALIFORNIA FARM PARADE

By United Press

The labor situation has farmers more worried than ever these days. Latest reports reveal that the supply of farm laborers available at current wage rates is about a quarter less than last year. And as a result of the sharp decrease in the number of workers, farmers have been forced to raise wages in order to keep the hired hand. In fact, the average of farm wages on October 1 was at the highest level since 1930. But even this has helped very little in keeping the regular hands on the farm. Those who aren't being taken by the army are unable to resist the lure of better paying jobs in defense industries.

In many instances older men and boys have been hired to replace them. The agriculture department says the migration process has been slowed somewhat by recent layoffs in non-defense industries, but even so, the supply of farm workers has decreased significantly.

In spite of all this, the department points out that agriculture

SAN FRANCISCO OBLIGATIONS UNDER RAKER ACT NOTED BY PRESIDENT

HYDE PARK, N. Y. (UP)—President Roosevelt intervened today in the California Hetch-Hetchy power distribution question.

He said he doubted whether any prudent congress or administration would release San Francisco from the Raker Act obligation of distributing power from the project over public facilities.

The President prefaced his statement with the explanation there has been some political effort to tell Californians that congress would change the Raker act to dis-miss San Francisco from its Raker act obligations.

Advertising isn't perfect

Some advertisements are better than others, just as some show windows are better than others.

Or as some salesmen are better than others.

So advertising isn't perfect, but it does a better job than anything else yet discovered.

It tells you what is to be had, and where to buy it, and is the cheapest way of doing this job.
